1. How this kit works

Jurassic English™ assesses how a student reasons: can they take a position (Claim), support it from the text (Evidence), explain what the evidence means (Interpretation), name the principle that links them (Warrant) and, at the top level, say what the argument means for the wider world (Impact)? Together these are called CEIW.

Each level adds one move:

Level	Ages (typical)	CEFR	CEIW moves taught	Sentence frame
L1 Foundation	4–8	Pre-A1 → A1	Claim	"I think… because…"
L2 Development	8–10	A1 → A2	Claim + Evidence	"In the text, the author writes that ___."
L3 Expansion	10–12	A2 → B1	Claim + Evidence + Interpretation	"This may suggest that ___."
L4 Mastery	12–14	B1 → B2	+ Warrant	"Underlying this is the principle that ___."
L5 Advanced	14+	B2 → C1	+ Counter-warrant and Impact	"An alternative principle would hold that ___. If accepted, this argument has implications for ___."

Every piece of work is scored in four bands: Emerging · Developing · Secure · Advanced. A student moves up a level when they reach Secure or higher on every required move, across three separate pieces of work.

The cycle: place the student (Section 2) → teach and collect worksheets (Section 3) → score with the sheets (Section 4) → report to parents (Section 5) → check progress each term (Section 6) → keep the evidence (Section 7).

4. Level 3 Exemplars — Developing Analyst (A2 / B1)

CEIW Depth: Claim + Evidence + Interpretation. Modality: Multi-paragraph (typically two paragraphs); paired-text response; spoken interpretation. Reminder: The most common failure at L3 is interpretation-as-restatement. The examples below are calibrated to make this distinction visible.

Exemplar 3.1 — Emerging

Field	Content
Level	3 — Developing Analyst
CEFR band	A2+
Rubric band	Emerging
Text / prompt context	Short story about a student, Lan, who finds her classmate's wallet and quietly returns it, telling no one. Prompt: "What does this story suggest about Lan's character?"
Student response sample	"The story is about Lan. She finds a wallet. She returns it. She does not tell anyone. This is the story."
CEIW annotation	Claim: not formed. Evidence: present as plot summary. Interpretation: missing.
Assessor comment	The response is an accurate plot summary. There is no claim about character and no interpretive move.
Why this band is accurate	A Developing response would attempt a claim, even vague. This response treats the prompt as a "retell" task.
Revision target	Add a claim: "Lan is honest and humble." Then keep the events as evidence and add a "this suggests" sentence.
DRE artifact type	Paragraph; tagged "L3, Justify, M-C, M-I."
Teacher feedback code	M-C, M-I

Exemplar 3.2 — Emerging

Field	Content
Level	3 — Developing Analyst
CEFR band	A2+
Rubric band	Emerging
Text / prompt context	Article about students who organize a school garden to grow vegetables for the cafeteria. Prompt: "What does the article suggest about the value of student-led projects?"
Student response sample	"Student-led projects are good. The students grow vegetables. The cafeteria uses them. Everyone is happy."
CEIW annotation	Claim: present but vague ("good"). Evidence: cited at sentence level. Interpretation: absent.
Assessor comment	The claim is non-specific. Evidence is on-topic but unconnected to a precise claim. No interpretation.
Why this band is accurate	The claim is too generic, and there is no interpretive sentence. A Developing response would attempt at least a vague interpretation.
Revision target	Add: "This may suggest that students learn responsibility when they take care of something real."
DRE artifact type	Short paragraph; tagged "L3, Justify, M-I."
Teacher feedback code	W-C, M-I

Exemplar 3.3 — Developing

Field	Content
Level	3 — Developing Analyst
CEFR band	B1
Rubric band	Developing
Text / prompt context	Same Lan-and-the-wallet story. Prompt: "What does this story suggest about Lan's character?"
Student response sample	"The story suggests that Lan is honest. She finds a wallet on the floor. She returns it to her classmate. She does not tell anyone. This shows that she returned the wallet quietly."
CEIW annotation	Claim: clear. Evidence: cited. Interpretation: present but is restatement of the action.
Assessor comment	The interpretation sentence ("This shows that she returned the wallet quietly") repeats what the evidence already said. The interpretive move is absent.
Why this band is accurate	A Secure response would add meaning beyond the event: "This may suggest that Lan values honesty more than recognition." This response stops at description.
Revision target	Replace the final sentence with an inference about Lan's values, not her actions.
DRE artifact type	Paragraph; tagged "L3, Justify, I-R."
Teacher feedback code	I-R

Exemplar 3.4 — Developing

Field	Content
Level	3 — Developing Analyst
CEFR band	B1
Rubric band	Developing
Text / prompt context	Poem about birds migrating across a wide ocean and resting briefly on a small ship. Prompt: "What does the poem suggest about the journey?"
Student response sample	"The poem suggests the journey is hard. The birds fly very far. They are tired. They land on a ship. This means the birds need to rest."
CEIW annotation	Claim: present. Evidence: cited. Interpretation: drifts into restatement.
Assessor comment	The final sentence ("the birds need to rest") restates the event ("they land on a ship") rather than interpreting it.
Why this band is accurate	The interpretation is paraphrased evidence, not added meaning. The restatement pattern is the canonical L3 Developing failure.
Revision target	Replace with: "This may suggest that even small kindnesses — a ship willing to wait — make long journeys possible."
DRE artifact type	Paragraph; tagged "L3, Justify, I-R."
Teacher feedback code	I-R

Exemplar 3.5 — Secure

Field	Content
Level	3 — Developing Analyst
CEFR band	B1
Rubric band	Secure
Text / prompt context	Article about a town that decided to ban single-use plastic bags. Prompt: "What does the article suggest about how communities change their habits?"
Student response sample	"The article suggests that communities can change their habits when small actions are visible. For example, the town bakery started using paper bags first. Other shops follow within a month. This may suggest that change spreads when people see one neighbor try something new. The article shows that the first step matters more than perfect rules."
CEIW annotation	Claim: precise. Evidence: a specific sequence cited. Interpretation: clear and distinct from the evidence.
Assessor comment	The interpretation adds genuine meaning ("change spreads when people see one neighbor try something new") that is not contained in the cited event. Hedging ("may suggest") is appropriate at B1.
Why this band is accurate	This hits L3 expectations cleanly. Not yet Advanced because the response does not consider counter-examples or paired evidence.
Revision target	Add: "However, in some towns, public habits change only when rules are also enforced." (introduces a qualifying counter-example, L4 precursor.)
DRE artifact type	Paragraph; tagged "L3, Publish, secure."
Teacher feedback code	+CL, +EV, +I

Exemplar 3.6 — Secure

Field	Content
Level	3 — Developing Analyst
CEFR band	B1
Rubric band	Secure
Text / prompt context	Short story about two friends, Ana and Mei, whose friendship is broken by a misunderstanding and later mended through a written letter. Prompt: "What does the story suggest about repair after conflict?"
Student response sample	"The story suggests that written words can repair what spoken words are damaged. Ana and Mei argue loudly in the schoolyard. They do not speak for a week. Then Ana writes a letter to Mei and explains carefully what she meant. Mei reads the letter twice. They meet and laugh again. This may suggest that writing gives time to think, while speaking can hurry our anger."
CEIW annotation	Claim: precise. Evidence: three cited story moments. Interpretation: distinct, principled, and properly hedged.
Assessor comment	The final sentence interprets why writing repaired what speech broke — it adds meaning beyond the events.
Why this band is accurate	Strong L3. Slightly below Advanced because there is no second supporting interpretation or comparative move.
Revision target	Compare a paired text on conflict resolution; or add a second interpretation about the role of time.
DRE artifact type	Paragraph; tagged "L3, Publish, secure."
Teacher feedback code	+CL, +EV, +I
