This week's story

Dot and the Egg in the Grass

An original Jurassic English story

Dot was a small green dinosaur. She liked to walk by the river every morning.

One morning, Dot stopped. In the long grass, there was an egg. It was round and white, with little brown spots.

"Hello, egg," said Dot. "Who do you belong to?"

The egg did not answer. Eggs never do.

Dot looked up. A bird sat in a tall tree. "Is this your egg?" asked Dot.

The bird looked down. "No," said the bird. "My eggs are blue. And they are up here, in my nest."

Dot thought. "This egg is not blue. And it is not in a tree. So it is not a bird's egg."

Next, Dot saw a big brown dinosaur. "Is this your egg?"

The big dinosaur laughed. "No! My eggs are as big as you, Dot. That egg is too small."

Dot looked at the egg again. It was small. It was round. It was near the water.

Then Dot saw something on the sand. Little tracks went from the river to the grass and back again.

Dot followed the tracks. At the end, by the water, sat a turtle.

"Is this your egg?" asked Dot.

The turtle smiled. "Yes! I put my eggs near the river, in the warm grass. Thank you for keeping it safe."

Dot smiled too. "I didn't know whose egg it was," she said. "But the clues told me."

The End

The live session, minute by minute

Before the session: Mr. Jay shares the story pages on screen. A grown-up sits near each child.

Minutes	Stage	What happens	Questions Mr. Jay asks
0–3	Hello	Each child says hello and one word for today's weather.	"Is it sunny or rainy where you are?"
3–6	Look first	The first picture only: Dot finds the egg. Children guess.	"What can you see? Whose egg is it? Why do you think so?"
6–16	Read and stop	Mr. Jay reads. He stops three times.	After the bird: "Why is it not the bird's egg?" · After the big dinosaur: "Why is it not her egg?" · At the tracks: "What will Dot do now?"
16–23	Think about it	Children answer with "because". Mr. Jay writes their best words on screen.	"How did Dot find the answer?" · "Which clue helped most?" · "What would you do if you found an egg?"
23–27	Say it again	Each child retells the story in three parts with Mr. Jay: first, then, at the end. Pictures help.	"First Dot found… Then she asked… At the end…"
27–30	Your home task	Mr. Jay shows the take-home page and says goodbye.	"Who will draw? Who will send a voice note?"

Words for this week: egg · spots · river · tracks · clue · belong

Thinking skill this week: using clues to explain "why" (it is not the bird's egg because it is not blue).

Take-home page

Dot and the Egg in the Grass

Name: _____

Choose one. About 10 minutes.

A · Draw. Draw the egg and where Dot found it. Draw one clue. Under your picture, finish the sentence:

Drawing space

The egg belonged to the _____ because _____.

B · Write. Write one or two sentences:

Dot knew it was not the bird's egg because _____.

C · Speak. Ask a grown-up to record a short voice note (30 seconds or less). Tell us: "First Dot found… Then she asked… At the end…"

Clue check: colour each clue that Dot used.

Clue	Did Dot use it?
The egg was not blue.	yes / no
The egg was small.	yes / no
The egg was near the water.	yes / no
There were tracks in the sand.	yes / no

For grown-ups: send a photo of the page or the voice note to Mr. Jay on Zalo. Mr. Jay replies personally within the week.

SAMPLE · FICTIONAL CHILD

The child sent a drawing of the egg by the river, with tracks in the sand, and wrote: "The egg belong to the turtle because it near the water."

> Hello! I love your drawing. You drew the tracks in the sand, and that was the best clue in the story. Well done!
>
> One thing you did well: you used "because" to explain your answer.
>
> One thing to try next time: say "it was near the water" and "the egg belonged to the turtle". Try saying it out loud once: "The egg belonged to the turtle because it was near the water."
