1. Introduction to Jurassic English™ Level 3

1.1 Mission Statement: The Literacy Pivot and Abstract Reasoning

At Level 3: Expansion, the Jurassic English™ curriculum undergoes its most significant cognitive shift. Designed for learners aged 10–12, Level 3 is engineered to navigate the "Literacy Pivot"—the critical juncture where language instruction transitions from describing the immediate, concrete world to reasoning about abstract, universal ideas (e.g., justice, memory, collective responsibility, ecological survival). The mission is to cultivate Divergent Thinking: the capacity to hold, analyze, and justify two equally defensible interpretations of a single text.

1.2 Pedagogical Positioning: The B1 Threshold

Level 3 is the bridge across the A2 → B1 threshold. It marks the departure from highly scaffolded, teacher-led reasoning (Level 2) into Independent CEIW Construction and Student-Led Socratic Discourse. At this level, students do not just answer questions; they interrogate the text, their peers, and the author's underlying assumptions.

1.3 Standards Alignment: CEFR A2 → B1 & CCSS Anchors

The Expansion level is mapped against rigorous international benchmarks, ensuring that intellectual development translates directly to measurable academic proficiency.

Standard	Level 3 Descriptor	JE Instructional Evidence
CEFR A2	Can understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of most immediate relevance.	Baseline entry requirement; fluent execution of simple causal statements.
CEFR B1	Can understand the main points of clear standard input on familiar matters; can produce simple connected text on topics which are familiar or of personal interest.	Independent production of CEIW paragraphs; ability to articulate and defend abstract moral positions in real-time.
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.R.CCR.6	Assess how point of view or purpose shapes the content and style of a text.	Stage 2 (Strata): Analyzing competing moral imperatives within a narrative.
CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.SL.CCR.3	Evaluate a speaker's point of view, reasoning, and use of evidence and rhetoric.	Stage 2 (Strata): Student-led Accountable Talk ("Pressing" and "Extending").

1.4 Core Cognitive Progression: The Divergence Engine

Level 3 advances the "Stratigraphy of Cognition" through a four-step framework demanding high-level synthesis:

1. Subtextual Observation: Moving beyond explicit narrative to locate implied meaning, subtext, and unstated motives.
2. Divergent Evaluation: Mapping "Fault Lines"—identifying the exact moment in a text where two opposing moral interpretations become equally valid.

3. Independent Justification: Constructing a formal argument (Claim → Evidence → Warrant → Impact) without sentence-stem scaffolding.
4. Systemic Reflection: Formally connecting human narrative choices to larger ecological and systemic consequences.

1.5 World Wise Learning — Publisher Statement

World Wise Learning (WWL) categorizes the A2-B1 transition as the highest-attrition phase in language acquisition (the "B1 Plateau"). Level 3 prevents stagnation by raising the intellectual stakes. By treating English as a medium for solving profound ethical dilemmas rather than a subject to be memorized, we force the necessary linguistic adaptation. This manual provides the operational architecture to guide students through this rigorous intellectual terrain.

Lesson 13: Excavation — Subtextual Observation and the Threshold of Imagination in Bridge to Terabithia

Target Grade Level / Subject / Duration

Grade Level: Ages 10–12 (CEFR A2 → B1)

Subject: English Language Arts (Jurassic English™ Level 3: Expansion)

Duration: 45 minutes

Overall Learning Goals

Students will open the Bridge to Terabithia dig site by separating Katherine Paterson's explicit text from the dense subtext beneath it. The novel works almost entirely through implication — what Jess feels is rarely named, but always traceable through what he does. Today: train the eye for B1-level subtextual observation.

> Teacher Pre-Note: This text moves toward a death by drowning. Today's lesson opens before that event. Frame the text honestly — students should know, in general terms, that loss is part of the story. The Cool Down Pass and Regulation Station are essential throughout this cycle. Co-teach with a counselor available if possible. The manual is clear: "Do not rescue them from the friction." That includes grief friction — but it does NOT mean ignoring it. It means scaffolding it, holding the standard, and trusting students to do the work.

Specific Learning Objectives

1. Students will independently regulate and locate the Cool Down Pass.
2. Students will distinguish explicit text from inferential subtext in the opening chapters.
3. Students will locate, dual-code (yellow=explicit, blue=inferred), and cite at least three pieces of evidence — at least one of which requires inference to understand.
4. Students will articulate the difference between "what the text states" and "what the author implies" using B1 markers.

Materials Needed

- Core Text: Bridge to Terabithia by Katherine Paterson.
- Audio version queued for the opening chapters.
- Dual-coding highlighters (Yellow=explicit; Blue=inferred).
- Cool Down Passes.
- Accountable Talk Reference Cards.
- B1 Interpretive Marker Poster.
- Regulation Station at the back of the room with a quiet light and Fidget Fossils.
- "Explicit vs. Subtext" T-chart projected.

Detailed Procedure / Step-by-Step Outline

Phase 1: Regulation & Framing (0–8 minutes)

- Activity: Self-regulation; honest framing of the text.
- Teacher Scripting Prompt: "This dig site is Bridge to Terabithia*. The book is honest about loss. We will not pretend it isn't. The Regulation Station is open the entire 45 minutes. The Cool Down Pass is automatic — no permission needed. Today, before the harder pages, we read the opening — Jess running, Leslie arriving. Take 90 seconds for the Butterfly Hug if you need it.*"
- Action: Verify Regulation Station accessible. Honor any student who needs it.

Phase 2: The Dig Site — Reading the Opening (8–22 minutes)

- Activity: Audio + text reading of opening chapters.
- Teacher Scripting Prompt: "Looking for two things today. EXPLICIT — what Paterson actually writes. INFERRED — what we understand without her writing it. She rarely tells you what Jess feels. She tells you what he does. The feeling is in the gap."
- Student Task: Follow audio with physical text.
- Action: Stop after Leslie wins the race.

Phase 3: Excavation — Subtextual Citation (22–37 minutes)

- Activity: Dual-coding the explicit/inferred distinction.
- Teacher Scripting Prompt: "Three Claims. Citations required. Yellow for explicit; Blue for inferred. Claim 1 — 'Jess practices running every morning.' That should be EXPLICIT. Claim 2 — 'Jess is angry that Leslie won.' That is INFERRED — Paterson never says 'angry.' What did she write that proves it? Claim 3 — 'Jess and his father do not understand each other.' INFERRED. What evidence proves that without Paterson stating it directly?"
- Student Task: Highlight in yellow OR blue depending on whether the citation is explicit or inferred. Cite page/paragraph.
- Teacher Move: "You highlighted that in yellow. Look again. Did Paterson actually USE the word 'angry'? No? Then it's blue. The author IMPLIES anger. That is subtext."

Phase 4: B1 Marker Practice (37–43 minutes)

- Activity: Verbal articulation of the explicit/subtext difference.
- Teacher Scripting Prompt: "For your blue highlights, complete this sentence aloud to your shoulder partner: 'The author implies ___ because she writes ___.' Or: 'This evidence suggests ___ because the underlying assumption is ___.' Use the markers."
- Student Task: Pair practice using B1 markers.
- Teacher Move: "Did you say 'the text says Jess is angry'? No, the text doesn't say that. Try: 'The author implies Jess is angry because she describes him kicking the dirt.' That's B1."

Differentiation / Accommodations

- Neuroinclusive (Executive Dysfunction / ADHD): Phase 3 movement — student walks to projected text on the wall and highlights physically. One Claim at a time.

Licensed for one teacher / one centre. © Jurassic English

SAMPLE · jurassicenglish.com/products

- Neuroinclusive (Anxiety / ASD): Role Card option — "The Marker," whose only job is to mark which claims in the text are explicit vs. inferred. Pre-share Phase 3 structure.
- Neuroinclusive (Dyslexia): Audio for full Phase 2. Pre-chunked target paragraphs. Peer reading partner.

Assessment & Rubric

Specific Learning Objective	Emerging (A2)	Developing (A2+)	Proficient (B1)	Mastery (B1+)
1. Self-Regulation	Requires prompting.	Regulates with prompting.	Independent throughout.	Pre-empts; supports peer.
2. Explicit vs. Subtext	Treats subtext as fact stated.	Some confusion.	Cleanly distinguishes; uses correct color.	Spontaneously names which is which using B1 markers.
3. Cited Subtextual Evidence	Cannot find blue evidence.	Finds but cannot cite.	3 cited; explicit/inferred correctly tagged.	Identifies subtext that even the teacher might miss.
4. B1 Markers	Uses only "the text says."	Mechanical use of one marker.	Natural use of implies / suggests.	Differentiates implies (specific) from suggests (open-ended).

Closure / Reflection (43–45 minutes)

- Teacher Scripting Prompt: "Tomorrow's Big Question: was Terabithia an escape from a hard life — or was it the only place where Jess could BE? Two equally defensible positions. Bring your highlights."

Homework / Extension Activities

- Task: Find ONE more piece of subtext in the opening chapters — something Paterson never states but you understand. Mark it in BLUE. Cite. We start Lesson 14 with these.
